

Water for all

African Storybook

Rob Owen

English

Elephant is thirsty.

He is happy to have
the whole pond to himself.

Two giraffes are thirsty too.

Will they fight over the water?

Three buffaloes
want to drink the water.

Will they let the four birds also
drink some water?

Five antelopes
need some water.

Can five antelopes
and six warthogs
drink water from the same source?

Will the seven
zebras be allowed to drink water as well?

Let's wait and see.

Frogs and fish
swim in the same
water.

Humans can swim
alongside frogs
and fish.

They can all drink
water from the same source.

The lion roars when he arrives at the river.

Can the lion, the elephant, buffaloes, the giraffe, warthogs, antelopes and birds all drink water together?

The elephant and the lion can drink water from the same river.

Where does your water come from?

Who do you share the water with?
